

THE PRINTABLES SITE

Master Plan — Finalised Categories, Sub-Niches & Execution

Built from six rounds of first-party Pinterest keyword research (Ads Manager keyword planner + autocomplete), plus Pinterest's own Predicts 2026 trend data.

Strategy: maximum outbound clicks from Pinterest to blog. Monetisation: display ads first, then affiliate and digital products.

Audience: US women, 25–55. Home-focused, project-oriented, printer-owning.

Constraint that shaped everything: no original photography, no crochet, no food styling. Every pillar below is producible in Canva by a team.

14 July 2026

1. THE RULE THAT GOVERNS EVERYTHING

"printable" is not a keyword modifier. It is the entire business.

bedroom wall art is 5m+ searches. It is a decor search. Pinterest returned bedroom decor, room inspo, cozy bedroom, room decor ideas alongside it. Those people want pretty pictures. They save. They do not click. Click-necessity: 1.

printable wall art for bedroom is a file search. The PDF only exists on your site. They must click. Click-necessity: 5.

Therefore: every article title, every URL, every H1 contains the word printable. The million-search decor terms go into your pin descriptions to catch overflow traffic — never into your article targets. Get this backwards and you will have a million impressions and forty clicks.

Why this site, and not the original plan

Six research batches all converged on the same answer. In every category, the only slice Pinterest showed real commercial demand for was the printable / template / checklist slice:

- Organization: printable labels, cleaning schedules, checklists — not pretty room photos.
- Kids: preschool activities printable (100k-500k), worksheets, classroom — not 'fun crafts' (Ads Manager returned literal nonsense: busy bags → business bag woman).
- Food: templates, planners, printable lists — not recipes (which need food photography you cannot do).
- Printables: printable wall art at 5m+, the biggest term found in the entire research.

That is not a coincidence. It is the exact intersection of (a) what you can produce without a camera and (b) what forces an outbound click.

2. SITE IDENTITY & ONE-LINE DESCRIPTION

Recommended one-liner

Free printables for your home — wall art, coloring pages, and organising systems you can download and print today.

It names the format (printables), the audience (home), the three pillars, and it ends on the action you want: download and print. Broad enough to cover all five pillars and any future expansion; specific enough that Pinterest, Google, and Raptive all know exactly what you are.

Alternatives, by use case

Use	Line
Pinterest profile bio (short)	Free printables for your home. Wall art, coloring pages, planners — download, print, done.
Site tagline / header	Print it. Frame it. Done.
Meta description (SEO)	Free printable wall art, coloring pages, and home organisation printables. Instant downloads, no sign-up required.
Ad network application	A free printables library for the home — downloadable wall art, coloring pages, organisation checklists, and meal planning templates, published with original artwork and step-by-step guides.
Elevator version	A free printables library for the home.

Do not put a niche word in the domain (no 'wallart', no 'coloring'). You need room to run all five pillars. A brandable two-word name plus the tagline does the work.

PILLAR 4 — KIDS, PRESCHOOL & CLASSROOM PRINTABLES

12% of output | Anchor: preschool activities printable (100k-500k)

PILLAR 5 — MEAL PLANNING & GROCERY PRINTABLES

8% of output | Premium ad category, zero food photography

The split that saved this pillar: meal planning and grocery list autocomplete to template, chart, sheet, list, printable, planner. But meal prep, crockpot meals, and dinner ideas autocomplete to recipes, chicken, pasta, beef — food photography. You take the first group. You never touch the second, no matter how big it is (crockpot meals healthy is 4m-5m and it is worthless to you).

SEASONAL — A THEME, NOT A PILLAR

You get the Q4 traffic spike without building the business on a seasonal dependency. Seasonal content runs through the five pillars rather than sitting beside them.

Season	Runs through	Publish by
Christmas	christmas coloring pages (100k-500k) · christmas printable wall art · printable gift tags · advent printables	25 Sept
Halloween	halloween coloring pages (100k-500k) · halloween printables · party printables	20 Aug (SKIP THIS YEAR)
Back to school	preschool worksheets · classroom decor · chore charts · lunchbox notes	20 July
New Year	printable planners · declutter challenges · goal printables	20 Nov

Halloween 2026: skip it. Content needs to be live by 20 August and you do not yet have a domain, a site, or a production pipeline. You would ship rushed content into the most competitive window of the year and lose. Attack it properly in 2027 with 12 months of runway.

Boundary: New Year budget/money printables belong to SpendWiseCents, not this site. Goal-setting and declutter printables belong here.

THE PIN-KEYWORD BANK

Head terms you never write articles on — but that go into the pin title and description of every relevant post. This is how you surface in the million-search feeds without competing for them.

THE KILL LIST — PERMANENTLY EXCLUDED

Cut	Why
Crochet	You cannot make or photograph it. Curation-only would mean republishing other designers' patterns and photos - an IP liability and an RPM leak.
Recipes / food photography	You cannot shoot it. crockpot meals healthy is 4m-5m and it is useless to you. Stock-photo recipe posts get no saves, no clicks, and get you rejected by Raptive.
Fashion	Zero click-necessity (the pin IS the answer) and Pinterest's auto-attached shopping product tags hijack the image click into Pinterest's shop tab instead of your site.
Home decor photography	Mood-board intent. Saves, not clicks.
General DIY / craft tutorials	Needs process photography.
Weight loss / diet	meal plan for weight loss is 100k-500k. Pinterest restricts weight-loss advertising and ad networks are wary. Use 'high protein' framing instead - nearly the same audience, none of the risk.
Aesthetic-only terms	grocery list aesthetic, meal prep aesthetic, coloring pages aesthetic - pure save-bait.

IP RULES — WRITE THESE INTO YOUR TEAM BRIEF TODAY

Pinterest autocomplete pushed copyrighted material at you in FOUR separate research batches. It will keep doing it. One takedown and your ad network drops you. This is the single thing that could kill the business.

- No characters, brands or franchises. Ever. Not 'inspired by', not 'in the style of'. (disnei color pages appeared in four separate autocompletes.)
- No branded illustrators. coloring pages bobbie goods, coco wyo - copyrighted brands.
- No anime / manga / chibi (100k-500k) - almost entirely copyrighted characters.
- Check every motif in trend terms like y2k color pages for trademarked imagery.
- Quotes: public domain only (pre-1930 authors, proverbs, scripture) or original lines you write yourself. Never song lyrics. Never living authors.
- Coloring pages: original artwork only - mandalas, florals, botanicals, patterns, generic animals, landscapes.
- No AI-generated hero images. Pinterest labels AI imagery and labels suppress distribution. Original design in Canva is fine; AI-generated art is not.

BOARD ARCHITECTURE — 22 BOARDS

One board per sub-niche. Not fifty random boards. Pinterest's 2026 model reads accounts as topical entities and rewards consistency.

EXECUTION RULES

The RPM problem (solve it on day one)

Printables sites die on RPM. Reader lands, grabs the PDF, leaves. Huge pageviews, thin sessions - and session depth is exactly what Raptive audits.

NEVER publish a bare download page. Every printable sits inside a real article - how to style it, what frame to buy, how to print it properly, 8 ways to use it - with internal links to 3-5 related printables and an email gate. Depth is the business model, and it is also what separates you from the AI slop currently flooding this niche.

Pin rules

- 3 pins per article, each targeting a different keyword and a different hook. Not three colour variants.
- 1000 x 1500 px (2:3). Taller pins get cut off and demoted.
- Stagger the 3 pins over 5-10 days. Never dump them at once. 3-5 pins/day total across the account.
- Enable Rich Pins. They see roughly 13% higher click-through than standard image pins.
- Manually add your own tags to wall-art and decor pins, to stop Pinterest's auto product tags stealing the click.

- Refresh: every article gets NEW pins in months 3, 6 and 9. An article is never 'done'.

Metrics & kill rules

- Primary KPI: outbound clicks. Nothing else pays you. A save does not pay you.
- Healthy outbound click rate: 0.2%-1.5% of impressions. Under 0.1% means your title or thumbnail is broken.
- Monthly loop: pull your top 5 pins by outbound clicks, find what they share, make more of exactly that.
- Kill rule: any sub-niche with 20+ pins live and 0 outbound clicks after 8 weeks gets dropped.

Realistic timeline

When	What happens
Month 1-2	Almost nothing. This is normal. Keep publishing.
Month 3	Algorithm starts picking you up.
Month 4	First real traffic. THIS IS WHERE MOST PEOPLE QUIT.
Month 5-6	Compounding. Apply to Journey by Mediavine at ~1,000 sessions/month.
Month 8+	3,000+ outbound clicks/month is a realistic benchmark for a consistent operator. With a full-time team you should beat it.
